ASM’s Copyright Policy

In consideration of ASM’s acceptance of the abstract and any other materials that attendee may submit to ASM in connection with an ASM meeting or conference (the “Presentation Materials”), attendee grants ASM a royalty-free, nonexclusive worldwide license to use, modify, publish, reproduce, prepare derivative works, distribute, publicly display, and archive the Presentation Materials, in whole or in part, in all forms of print and electronic media, for commercial or noncommercial use. Under this license, attendee also grants ASM permission to sublicense to others any or all of the aforementioned rights.

Attendee understands that he/she retains ownership of the Presentation Materials; however, attendee further understands that ASM shall own and retain all intellectual property rights in any printed or electronic collection or compilation of Presentation Materials in whole or in part.

By submitting the Presentation Materials, attendee represents and warrants that the Presentation Materials are original to attendee or that he/she has the right to use such Presentation Materials, and that the Presentation Materials do not contain any material that will violate the copyright or any personal, proprietary, or other right of any person or entity. Attendee is responsible for obtaining any necessary permissions required to grant rights to ASM prior to submission.

ASM acknowledges that no copyright protection attaches to Presentation Materials that were authored by U.S. Government Employees, so the abstract license does not apply in those situations. However, all other provisions that attendee is required to agree to during the abstract submission process remain in effect.
